What is it like Living at 5,000 ft?

Doublet and Herron, two of MAF's ground staff, 'working out' loading 270 boxes of food into the back of the Twin Otter

We live at 5,200 Ft above the sea. The temperature is 22°C all year around, slightly cooler in the evenings. When it rains, it starts at 4:30pm and stops before 5:30pm and the mountain views are spectacular.

Apparently, high altitude living is healthy! Sydney has started advertising special gymnasiums with high altitude pseudo environments for a good workout.

"I suggest Sydney advertises some hard work expeditions to the highlands here in PNG and do some real good working out by loading the Twin Otter with a few tonnes of food five times a day!"

Clare's Billums and Maternity Packs

Clare continues to make Billums (local bags) from coffee sacks to raise Kina (local money) to fund her maternity packs for mothers flown in on MEDEVAC flights.

These mothers often have their baby in the bush, but are then rushed by aircraft to hospital because of a retained placenta.

Hospital conditions can be awful. No blankets, No fresh water to drink, No clothes for the new born babies, and No sanitary towels for the mothers.

Up to 25% of all new born babies die another 25% before the age of five.

Clare's maternity packs make a small difference physically, but much more importantly show that someone cares, that someone loves them, and that there is something to look forward to...

Online Water...

Chief Pilot Michael Duncalf, also a Brit, and Paul being welcomed at a small bush airstrip after transporting much needed water piping to the village

"It is amazing how much of a difference a supply of water pipe can make. These villagers are putting on a full show to demonstrate how thankful they are to MAF and all their supporters." - Paul Woodington, 2013
